

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

DBF Welcomes Cylc

Emily H. Cylc is the most recent addition to the Salisbury office of Davis, Bowen & Friedel, Inc. (DBF). A graduate of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University of Blacksburg in Virginia, she will be providing architectural design services to the firm.

Cylc began her professional career more than eleven years ago as an intern in Virginia. She provided assistance with schematics, design development, 3D graphic elevations, and job site inspections, as well as site measurements and photography for various projects. Cylc's work as an architectural designer on the Eastern Shore of Maryland has included assisting lead designers with all phases of the design process, permit applications, client interaction, job site visits, and completion of municipal paperwork. She is skilled in the use of AutoCAD, Adobe Photoshop, Adobe Illustrator, Sketch-up, hand drafting, and model construction.

In the brief time since joining DBF, Cylc has provided assistance with such diverse projects as the interior redesign of an existing office space, the creation of construction documents for a fire station, developing the schematic floor plans for a private residence, and the design of a new municipal parking department's office building.

Following their marriage eight years ago, Cylc and her husband Edward, a native of Pocomoke City, relocated to the Eastern Shore from Richmond, Virginia. When not working, Cylc and her husband enjoy family time with their sixteen month old daughter, Katelyn.

"At Davis, Bowen & Friedel we strive to serve our clientele creatively, professionally and with a sincere desire to meet and exceed their goals at every opportunity. Emily enhances our capabilities to do just that, and we look forward to having her as a key component of our architectural division," stated DBF principal Michael Wigley, AIA.
